

Marika Theros

Marika Theros is an activist and academic working at the intersection of action-oriented research, policy and civic engagement in difficult environments. She is the director of the Civic Engagement Project and a fellow at LSE IDEAS where she co-directed PeaceRep's Afghanistan Research Network. Her research and work focus on political mobilization, global-local dynamics of violence and change, peacebuilding and multi-stakeholder dialogues, the politics of knowledge production, and design support for civil society inclusion in peace processes. She is also the co-founder of the Civic Ecosystems Initiative, a platform to explore the phenomenon of 'civic ecosystems and social innovation. She holds non-resident fellowships at the Atlantic Council and Institute for State Effectiveness. Over the last 15 years, Marika has designed a number of research and dialogue processes in/on the Balkans, South Asia and the Middle East, to support multilevel, multi-dimensional peace-making and peace-building approaches. She has provided expert input into practitioner and policy dialogues, including in the UN Expert Group to inform the UN World Public Sector Report. She completed her doctorate on International Development from the London School of Economics, an M.A. in International Affairs from Columbia University and an MSc in Human Rights from LSE. She publishes widely on issues of conflict, security, justice and civil society.